

History of International Military Student Programs at USASMA

The International Military Student Program and Exchange Instructor Program

Students in Class #6 of the Sergeants Major Course began their studies in August, 1975. Robert J. May of Australia was the very first and only international military student in attendance at USASMA and paved the way for future international students after his graduation in January, 1976.

May of 1984: at the direction of the Chief of Staff of the Army, the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations asked the commander of the Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) to study ways “to expand Army programs for interaction between U.S. Army and foreign Army military and civilian personnel.” Based on comments from TRADOC, ODCSOPS forwarded to the Army Chief of Staff in October of 1985, an Issue Paper recommending the “Opening the Sergeants Major Course to Foreign Students.” The proposal was ultimately approved by the CSA.

October 1985: West Germany, Britain, and Canada were offered the opportunity to station an NCO at USASMA as a Sergeants Major Course (SMC) Instructor. The initiative by the Army Chief of Staff was a means of enhancing the Academy’s growth and bolstering credence to USASMA’s International Military Student Program initiatives. The countries that initially participated were selected because their NCOs had much in common with U.S. NCOs. Britain was the first to formally accept, and then the Canadian Army also agreed to the idea. West Germany initially declined, but later requested the opportunity to provide an instructor in the future. Also in October of that same year, HQDA directed TRADOC to conduct a worldwide survey to determine foreign interest in attending the SMC. TRADOC was also directed to open the course to foreign students no later than Fiscal Year ‘87 if sufficient interest was found.

As a means of enhancing the image of SMC in the eyes of foreign countries, course attendance was initially only by CSA invitation. This allowed for the same course structure as the Command and General Staff College and Army War College.

November 1985: a survey initiated by Security Assistance Field Agency (SATFA) was sent out to nations worldwide, with a response deadline of January 1986. The survey canvassed 118 countries and resulted in a total of 74 responses. Only 30 countries declared any interest in sending their service members to USASMA’s SMC.

A pilot course instituted in April 1986, consisting of four to six NCOs was proposed, and it was recommended the pilot course kick-off with SMC Class #31 (Jan 88) to coincide with the opening of USASMA’s new facility. Five International Military Students attended the Sergeants Major Academy.

b. The International Fellows Pre-Course: 37 international students from 30 countries: International students come to USASMA with a wide variety of backgrounds and skills. Each has shown a proficiency in reading, writing and speaking English. Many have already spent time in the United States taking courses in English in preparation for the course. Even so, there was a lot of knowledge and orientation needed to help the new international students adjust to the USASMA Sergeants Major Course. The adjustment came in a ten-week pre-course offered in the summer just before the beginning of class. The course provided cultural orientation, an overview of the SMC course, a review of the academy's standards and regulations, physical fitness training, country briefs, international sponsorship and a series of formal functions. The course provided an opportunity to bring the students' families and their USASMA sponsors together. The additional subjects taught in the "Writing for Academic Excellence" portion of the course were:

- a. Technology and Presentation Strategies
- b. Presentations and Respect and Tolerance in the Workplace
- c. Class Mission Statement
- d. Introducing Army Standard of Communication

- e. Gathering and Categorizing Information

Field Studies Program

Field Studies Program (FSP) trips for Class 65 were to Washington D.C., (Congress, the Supreme Court, the Smithsonian, several federal other institutions, the Pentagon {visit with the SMA}, and the Holocaust Museum). IMS from Class 65 participated in a Field Studies Program in Baltimore, Maryland where they received detailed information briefings on the war of 1812 which inspired the writing of the Star Spangled Banner, the Flag House, the Immigration Museum, the Maritime Museum, and Fort McHenry. IMS also participated in a program of study in Austin and San Antonio, Texas, which took them to state government institutions and included a trip to the LBJ Ranch, museum and library. Students attended a legislative hearing in the Texas House of Representatives and were invited to a luncheon hosted by State Representative Joe Pickett who gave a detailed information brief on the duties and responsibilities of a congressional representative. An FSP event at Fort Davis, Texas focused on familiarizing international students to rural Texas. Due to the remote location of the event, cellular phones, television, and other electronic devices were not available and/or did not have signal. The FSP event focused on life in Western Texas, West Texas Forts used during Westward expansion, and the role of the Buffalo Soldiers. Students also received briefs and detailed tours of the McDonald Observatory in the Davis Mountains.
